Karen Arrington's trip to Vista Farms

Juana Diaz, Puerto Rico

Last November my husband, Eddie, and I had the opportunity to visit Vista Farms in Puerto Rico. We were treated to the generous hospitality of Jerome O'Neill, the owner of Vista Farms. He gave us the grand tour of his nursery and old town San Juan. It was really a treat being a tourist with Jerome sharing with us the rich history of the island. On to the farm...

What most impressed me at Vista Farms was the quality of Bougainvillea liners they produce. I was standing in the shipping area looking at how uniform, clean, toned everything was. I was in awe on how beautiful these plants were. It's no wonder Vista Farms is known for their plants arriving in great shape after transport. They have extremely high standards and Jerome explained the many protocols they go through to achieve an "A" Grade Bougainvillea liner.

Late in the afternoon just prior to leaving the farm, rain clouds gathered and I found myself gazing into the beautiful green hills. I had a great experience of the sweet smell of the country just before it rained. It was clear to me I was in a beautiful place!

Variegated Bougainvillea liners

Ixora 'Hawaii'

New dwarf pink cultivar; This is probably a sport of the Ixora Taiwanese Pink. The distinguishing feature is that it's more vigorous with a slightly larger wavy leaf.
